Research Interests

My research seeks to strengthen health systems to improve maternal & newborn health outcomes through innovative models of nursing and midwifery care. A major focus of my current work is on testing a model of group antenatal care for low- and non-literate populations with the ultimate goal of reducing the burden of maternal mortality on individuals, their families, and society. A continuing focus of my work is to develop a scalable and sustainable model of maternity waiting homes as a system-based intervention to increase facility delivery and improve key maternal and newborn health outcomes.

Research Projects and Grants (over $16 million total in research funding)

(PI: V. Dzomeku; US Partner: J. Lori)	2021-2023
Project 9-518	$200,000

National Academies of Science, Engineering & Medicine/USAID

Partnerships for Enhanced Engagement in Research (PEER)

“Community and Hospital Based Obstetrics WhatsApp Triage, Referral, and Transfer (WAT-RT) System”

The overarching goal of this project is to increase continuity and access to quality maternal care reducing preventable, obstetric-related deaths through: 1) a WhatsApp Triage, Referral and Transfer (WAT-RT) System connecting clinical staff and midwives at rural health facilities with healthcare personnel at referral hospitals, and 2) an obstetric (OB) triage system implemented at referral hospitals to decrease facility delays. The WAT-RT system will allow two-way communication to assist in early problem identification and prompt referral to the next level of care.

(PI: J. Lori) 2020-2022

Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation $315, 310.

Grand Challenge Award

“WhatsApp Triage, Referral & Transfer System: Increasing Access & Quality” Percent effort: 15%

System: Increasing Access & Quality”

The primary outcome of this study is to increase access to cesarean section (CS) by decreasing referral time, improving obstetrics triage methods and decision making, and decreasing the Decision-to-Delivery (DDI) time through a WhatsApp triage, referral and transfer (WAT-RT) system in rural Liberia.

(PI: J. Lori) 2020-2021

Graham Institute for Sustainability $10,000
